[illegible] LOSS

An Exciting [illegible] the [illegible] Beaten.

[illegible] rowed at [illegible] continent [illegible] course and [illegible] wonderful [illegible] Teemer was [illegible] dark blue [illegible] when the race [illegible] stake boats [illegible]

Ross won the toss [illegible] Wichita [illegible] Teemer caught the [illegible] however, for Ross [illegible] steady, powerful stroke [illegible] Teemer [illegible] Ross sat straight [illegible]

[illegible]

Ross led for the first mile and a quarter, the distance varying from a few [illegible] to two [illegible] abreast of the [illegible] North [illegible] a mile and a quarter [illegible] ranged [illegible] minute he [illegible] his boat about five [illegible] ahead of [illegible] thirty two and again went ahead.

Both [illegible] moved well [illegible] themselves up to the turn which [illegible] length ahead. Here the [illegible] turning point was reached. Ross seemed to have forgotten [illegible] the stake boat. He went away [illegible] the stake boat when the [illegible] was half way round. Teemer made a beautiful turn from the boat. He had hardly [illegible] three feet when he buried his left oar [illegible] as straight as a cornstalk and pulled [illegible] with the right as though [illegible] rarely been seen on the water. His boat appeared to [illegible] still at the will of the rower and to turn about as though she were a toy in her owner's hands. This piece of extraordinary skill gave T[illegible] a lead of four lengths clear water and virtually the race.

THE RETURN.

The return was very exciting, however, for Ross did his best to [illegible] the great loss he had suffered and put in some of the hardest rowing that one could want to see. He still seemed to think he had the race and could pick up the loss in the last mile. When the north point of [illegible] was reached, which was about a mile from home, Wallace [illegible] Teemer had been [illegible] first mile of the [illegible] rowing rather quickly and not [illegible] put his right hand out into the river for water to bathe his head. At this point Ross increased his stroke from 28 to [illegible] Teemer stayed [illegible] Ross was encouraged [illegible] judges' steamer and row [illegible] was worth. At the three miles and three-quarters he hit as high as [illegible] strokes to the minute. Teemer [illegible] up to 34, but did not [illegible] more than [illegible] lengths [illegible] kept up [illegible] He continued [illegible] not the [illegible] front even if he had been able.

THE LAST [illegible]

[illegible] was plainly [illegible] his [illegible] Ross still [illegible] creep up [illegible] his brow [illegible] Teemer thus won [illegible]

[illegible] the boat house. Ross was cross and [illegible] Ross and [illegible] minutes and [illegible]

Some doubt [illegible] accuracy of the [illegible] one authority was asked what he thought [illegible] that four miles had [illegible] was one of the greatest [illegible] saw.

THE DEMOCRATIC OUTLOOK.

An ominous thing is the suggestion of the New York Sun that Cleveland withdraw from the democratic ticket, with discussion by the Sun and Star of the practicability of the step. The usual panicky "squawk" comes early this year. Heretofore it has not been heard till the October elections have given the alarm.

The "erratic course" of the Sun, which is attracting so much attention, is due to an extremely earnest desire on its part to see the republican party defeated, coupled with harassing fear that the candidacy of Cleveland will not lead to that result. The Sun, however intense its desire to see the republican party "go," nevertheless has not surrendered its judgment to its wishes. It cannot conceal from itself the evidences of Cleveland's weakness with his party, and the doubts it entertained from the first as to the expediency of nominating him are hardening into surer apprehensions of his defeat. Believing that a mistake has been made in naming him as the candidate, and that but for this mistake there would be good reason to expect a democratic victory, the Sun throws out this suggestion as to his withdrawal. The comment on the suggestion, made by the Star, organ of Tammany, is equally significant, because it shows that no progress has been made toward reconcilement of that powerful organization.

It is the attitude of the working classes, chiefly, that produces this alarm in the democratic mind. Their declarations against Cleveland indicate a powerful opposition from sources which hitherto have been the great centers of democratic strength. On the part of voters of Irish descent this opposition is very marked. A vast force, which hitherto, almost in a solid body, has supported the democratic party, appears now to be divided, and the aggressive portion of it has declared for Blaine as a means of defeating Cleveland, while that part which still adheres to the democratic party is only nominally loyal and does not unite with any earnestness with the work of the democratic campaign. This is the present situation. If it does not change Cleveland will be beaten as badly as Greely was. Indeed the present outlook is not unlike that of 1872. Cleveland owes his nomination, as Greeley did, to an extreme desire on the part of the democratic managers to conciliate and win the republican independents, who, through some half dozen newspapers, make a noise out of all proportion to their actual strength. To win over this choice circle of "independents" in New York, men who have no following among the masses and whom a fair-sized hall will easily hold, the wishes of great bodies of democratic voters have been ignored or overridden; and as a further means of pleasing the few fastidious gentlemen of independent pretensions, and of making a select party with which they would condescend to associate, Tammany has been snubbed and humiliated, and virtually cast out of the party.

But is there actual evidence of defection from the democratic party? It may be seen not only in the course of the Sun and Star, but in the attitude of the organized labor of the country; in the public meetings of men who have always been adherents of the democratic party but now assemble to denounce Cleveland; in the utterances of the Irish-American press, hitherto solidly democratic but now in large part openly for Blaine; in the declarations which any one may hear from the masses of the people who chooses to go among them and make the necessary inquiry. All observant politicians agree that nothing like this has ever been witnessed in any former canvass. It will beat Cleveland overwhelmingly, unless the aspects of it shall undergo before the election a most striking change.

HOW IT STARTED.

This journal has declined to print the details of what is known as the "Cleveland Scandal." In response to numerous inquiries as to what the allusions in the telegraphic reports were all about, it has simply printed a brief letter from Rev. George H. Ball of Buffalo, giving a bare outline of the specific charge and presenting the names of well-known citizens for verification of it. The scandal has given rise already to a very extensive literature; but there is as yet nothing to show that the charge is to be met. Leading democratic papers have frequently referred to it; some of them have published the story with all its details, and many are discussing the question, whether it can safely be ignored or not? Meantime other journals, not of partisan character, declare that it will not do to treat charges so grave and published with so much circumstantiality, with the contempt of silence. Thus the Catholic Universe, published under the approval of Bishop Spalding of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "The charges must be met either by Governor Cleveland or by the democratic party. If Governor Cleveland cannot meet them, the democratic party can only meet them by demanding his immediate withdrawal from the head of the ticket."

The republican press has had little to say about this scandal. It owes its publicity chiefly to the democratic opponents of Governor Cleveland, who first circulated it against him in New York and afterwards carried it to Chicago, where it was employed as an argument against his nomination for the presidency. It was talked of by the delegates and among the crowds at the democratic national convention, in a manner sufficiently open to acquaint all the journalists in the country with the details. It was part of the fight made against Cleveland by a section of his own party, and the story, with all its disgusting fullness of detail, first appeared in an evening paper of Buffalo, which claims to be purely independent in politics. It was telegraphed at once to the Cincinnati Enquirer, the great democratic organ of the west, and appeared in full in the columns of the paper next morning. It was offered likewise as a special to such republican papers as the New York Tribune, the Boston Journal, the Inter-Ocean and Tribune of Chicago, the Globe-Democrat of St. Louis, and many others, but not one of them would receive it.

Publication of the scandal, then, is not, as a democratic journal before us declares it, "a vile scheme of republican editors to persecute and defame Gov. Cleveland." It was his own political associates who first gave the country to understand what the private life of the democratic candidate for the presidency was, and the story was told again and again at the July convention at Chicago to all who could be induced to hear it.

In the present house of representatives the democrats have a majority of seventy-three, and a majority in the delegations of twenty-two states, while the republicans have a majority in the delegations of fifteen states, and one delegation (that of Florida) is equally divided. As, in choosing a president by the house, in case there should be no election by the people, "the votes shall be taken by the states, the representation from each state having one vote," the democrats would have the majority of all the states necessary to a choice.

The New York Times is objecting to the selection of Mr. Barnum as general manager of the Cleveland campaign, and the democratic newspapers are telling the Times to hold its tongue. The Cincinnati Enquirer very frankly says that "since the Times came into the democratic ranks without invitation, we trust it will accept what is set before it and ask no questions."

---

Republicans and greenbackers in West Virginia have nominated a joint ticket which has every prospect of carrying the state. Greenbackism was a delusion that formerly prevailed pretty widely, but now has become obsolete. In West Virginia the name is simply used as a bridge to carry a considerable body of people, who are yet tender about being called republicans, into affiliation with the republican party.

THE GRAND ARMY.

The Grand Army of the Republic has grown within the last half-dozen years from a very small order to a membership approaching nearly half a million. At first view it might seem that the natural movement of such an organization would be in the direction of diminution rather than of increase. But its growth can well be accounted for by the increasing popularity of the order, the elimination from it of some objectionable features, and a better appreciation of its objects. The aims are simply to keep alive the old fraternal feeling of the camp and field; to assist those veterans who have come to want, and to keep alive the spirit of patriotism among our people. These surely are praiseworthy objects, deserving of the support of all veterans and of the countenance and good will of the people at large. Nearly twenty years have now elapsed since the war closed, and every year bears us farther away from those dark days when suspense and ill-defined fears and loud laments burdened the soul and made the very atmosphere so heavy that none could breathe freely and deeply. But this very separation from the actual conflict seems to exalt the strength of purpose and patience of those who went down into the valley of the shadow of death for the country's salvation. Unconscious heroism was much of this determined bearing and brave endurance of pain, as the highest sacrifice must ever be unthinking of self; but none the less does it merit the undiminished admiration and gratitude of those who enter into the fruits of these labors. It is well that the Grand Army exists to keep in popular remembrance that heroism and that sacrifice, and to renew our admiration and gratitude; to teach the children and the rising generation the lesson of patriotism and valor; to revivify our love of country.

And for the members themselves who take an active part in its campfires it furnishes a very valuable opportunity for the exercise of intellectual and social gifts which, in rural communities particularly, are apt to stagnate. The field of politics is limited in its opportunities, and the church, though ample and liberal enough in its scope and aims, does not absorb the activities of the majority of men. Without such orders as the Grand Army a large number have no chance to play a part on any public stage, and the consequence is that they fail to develop the forensic talent, or to assert their claim upon the recognition of their fellows as persons of real capacity and influence. The opportunity to speak and act in public, to rehearse the stories of battles and sieges, and to perform the various parts in the ritual of the order is of great value to the majority of its membership. Apart, therefore, from the main purpose of exercising charity and fraternity and stimulating loyalty, the organization presents the additional attraction of a field for the cultivation and exercise of intellectual and social gifts, which is by no means its least useful feature.

DIVORCE.

A correspondent of the Vermont Chronicle writing from a western state, after mentioning that he had recently freed his mind on the subject of easy divorce, adds: "I did not lack occasion. Two divorced ministers in the association, and a deacon sitting in front of me with his wife, (?) whose other husband is a minister, divorced for dislike. A prominent man in this city married a divorced woman, and when she was sick they sent for her husband and children, and both husbands watched with her some weeks and attended the funeral together; for providentially, she did not recover to raise the question, 'Whose wife shall I be here?' For they both had her. You perhaps noticed a report of 'An Ecclesiastical Trial,' in the Congregationalist of February 28. Mr. ——, an Englishman, left his wife in Canada while he hunted a parish here. She went to her friends in England and he got a Michigan divorce for desertion. They had quarreled and parted once in England. I suppose he might now legally live either with his English wife in England, or with his American wife in America, or with each alternately, if the women would consent." This, says one of our exchanges, is a little worse than anything we have known at the east. Divorces are far too easy and too common in some portions of New England; but it is not often that ministerial encouragement is given to such laxity, either by precept or example.

The ministers on the other hand we think err in going to the opposite extreme. The ecclesiastical position on divorce is not as sound as that of the state. The state is more practical than the church. It necessarily and very properly treats marriage as a civil contract and also as a social institution, and prescribes the terms and conditions upon which parties shall enter into this contract, and also the terms and conditions under which they may be discharged from its obligations. That is to say, the state is so far interested in marriage as a social institution that it will not allow parties to enter into this relation, or to release themselves from its duties at their mere will and pleasure. The state also assumes that when parties have entered into this relation and fail to perform its obligations both individual and social welfare require that the relation should no longer exist. In other words, it assumes that when married people fail to keep their marriage vows, public and private morality require that the bond, which has been actually broken, should be legally discharged. The frequency of divorce is no doubt to be regretted, but the remedy is not to be found in a departure from the theory of the state, but in such a change in public opinion and in private morality as shall enforce a more careful observance of the marriage contract. When the obligations are actually disregarded, when the marriage vow is persistently broken, it is certainly better that the legal bond should be dissolved.

The Cleveland boom has, according to the regular campaign order of things, about two months more to run. The McClellan boom lasted until the latter part of September; the Greeley boom did not become ridiculous until late in the summer, and the Hancock boom extended into October. It will be remembered that for three months after the nomination of Garfield in 1880 defeat seemed inevitable, and some of his friends had grave doubts of the result. There will probably be some people in the country who will honestly think, until after the Ohio election, that Cleveland may be elected.

When the delegation of forty bolters started from Boston to New York, to attend the University Club theater meeting, their organ, the Boston Advertiser, reminded them with great earnestness not to attempt any declaration of principles of their own. "If you do," said the Advertiser, "you will be sure to break up." This was one of the humors of the late bolt.

---

There has never yet been a party founded on the dislike of an individual. Nor is there anything to fear from a faction that would defeat the party it claims to belong to for the purpose of expressing its spite against one man. All the grave and high-sounding assumptions of superiority in the world could not elevate such a purpose.

---

It may be doubted whether Mr. Koltner's views as to the political situation in Oregon will convince the managers of the democratic campaign that it is worth while to send any good speakers or good money into the state. The managers will probably husband both for those states which are not regarded as so certain to go for Blaine.

---

The democrats can pull their throttles wide open and give vent to their honest feelings. Logan's great speech on the Fitz John Porter bill will be one of the republican campaign documents. There will be no dodging of party questions, and this was made a party question by the democrats.

---

The Irish World (New York) in its issue of July 26 covers a large part of its first page with extracts from the four leading papers of London, reproduced in display type, in which great satisfaction is expressed with Cleveland's nomination, joined with the hope that he will be elected. The World emphasizes in particular the declaration of the London Telegraph that the Irish-American hatred of Cleveland is the best certificate obtainable for his election.

When Judge E. R. Hoar of Massachusetts was talking about civil service, in his speech a few days ago he said: "I think if the democrats had had the courage of their convictions they would have nominated old Judge Thurman, and the only plank in the platform would have been 'Let the boys come in out of the cold to warm their toes,' which, I understand, was Judge Thurman's platform before the Chicago convention. But they concluded to have this bait held out."

---

Hendricks was put on the ticket to keep the south solid, and the south will be expected to rally and keep Mr. Hendricks solid. The northern states are not anxious to keep alive sectional feelings, and they are still less anxious to put in power a man who tried to destroy the Union—a man who helped to make the sectional line.

"LET IT DIE!"

The Democratic Party Never Can and Never Ought to Win Another National Victory.

Chicago Times (Dem.) November, 1880 (Now Supporting Cleveland.)

The recent presidential election has shown that there is an invincible reason why the democratic party can never win a national victory. It is that the youth of this republic are not democratic. The sons of democratic fathers have grown up republicans. So long as slavery and the war linger in the memory of Americans, the youths of the republic will continue to grow up republicans; and slavery and the war will be remembered as long as the public school system exists. The public schools have with the text-books. It is vain for statesmen to declare that there was as many democrats as republicans in the union army. It is vain to affirm that the war for the preservation of the union could not have been carried to a successful close without the aid of the democratic party. It is idle for philanthropy to suggest that the attitude of that party toward the war in the beginning was a humane one; that it was inspired by the higher and better wish that the cause of the conflict should be peaceably removed, and the spilling of brothers' blood by brothers' hands avoided. The democratic party has been ideally identified with slavery and slaveholding. The republican party is ideally identified with emancipation and the war. Therefore are the youths of the country incapable of being democratic. Therefore the democratic party can never win a national victory.

ITS OLD MEN ARE DYING AWAY.

The boys who catch the ballots that fall from their stiffened hands are republicans. This fact cannot be denied. It will do no good to quarrel with it. All other causes which have operated to diminish the number of democrats and increase the number of republicans are insignificant beside this one tremendous and invincible fact. The curse of slavery has poisoned the blood and rotted the bone of the democratic party. The malediction of the war has palsied its brain. The young wife who held the babe up to kiss the father as he hurried to the tap of his departing regiment has not suckled a democrat. The weary foot of the gray grandmother who watched the child on while the wife was busy has not rocked the cradle of democrats. The chair that the soldier father never came back to fill has not been climbed upon by democrats.

THE CHILDREN GO TO SCHOOL.

There is not a democrat on its benches. The first reader contains the portrait of Abraham Lincoln—that kind and sturdy face never made a democrat. On its simple pages, in words of one or two syllables, is told the story of his birth and death. That story never made a democrat. In the pranks of the playground the same silences the frolicsome and makes the jolliest grave. The name never made a democrat. In the pictures that light up the geography are the firing on Fort Sumter and the death of Ellsworth. Those pictures make no democrats. The first page of the history contains a representation of the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. No boy gazes on that and ever after avows himself a democrat.

In the higher grades the same subtle and unresisted influence is at work. The text-book contains extracts from patriots' speeches during the war.

THE OLD BLUE COAT

that his comrades carried back was cut up for little jackets, but not one covered the heart of a democrat. The rattle of muskets that fell from him with his last shot became the thoughtless toy of his boys; but not a hand that played with it was the hand of a democrat. The babe he kissed, crowed and crowed for his return, and its unwitting and unanswered notes were not from the throat of a democrat. The tear-soiled camp letters which the mother read aloud in the long, bitter evenings while the boys clustered at her knees did not fall upon democratic ears. The girls' sobs, blending with the mother's weeping, did not make democrats of their brothers. Perhaps the father had been a democrat all his life!

THOSE SPEECHES MAKE NO DEMOCRATS.

The great battles are briefly described; the narrative has no democratic listeners. The strain of martial music runs through the readers, and that music makes no democrats. Sketches of the great generals are given; the brave deeds arouse the enthusiasm of the lads but there is no democrat among them. The horrors and sufferings of the slaves are told; the maddened blood that mounts the boy's cheeks is not democratic blood. The curse of slavery has pursued the democratic party, and has hounded it to its death. Therefore, let it die; and on its will be found to say a prayer over the grass on its grave.

The late defeat need not be attributed to any other causes. Other causes were at work, but they were only incidental. The tariff was one. Sectionalism was a second. "Let well enough alone" was a third. The October failure in Indiana was a fourth. But all these were trivial, and altogether could not have accomplished the result. The result was accomplished because the youths of the republic are not democratic. That party is therefore without a future and without a hope. The malediction of the war has palsied its brain. The curse of slavery has poisoned its blood and rotted its bone. Let it die.

CITY.

PROTECTION AND ASSISTANCE.—Gustaf Swedish vice consul in this city, says that made by C. Ritter, that he was refused L. Hibbard any conversation with the Ida Planning, now at his house, does injustice to Mr. Hibbard. Miss Planning requested Mr. Hibbard not to admit to her presence, unless coming with or Wilson, she having entrusted all personal matters to his care. Her ignorance of any tongue other than the dialect of a province on the Baltic sea has rendered her almost helpless in this country. Immediately on the death of her brothers at Astoria, she lamented almost incessantly by both relatives and friends of her brothers who had all advice to give and requests to make. She received insulting proposals, and in every case some attempt was made to get from her what little money she had. Her feelings of security and relief can be imagined when the kind hearted man offered her his protection and all the aid in his power. He succeeded in finding a man here who could speak her dialect, and a thorough knowledge of her history, her condition and her desires for the future. He also visited Astoria and inquired into the affairs of her deceased brothers, finding they had left a little property, the principal part of which was a certificate of deposit for $300. This Mr. Wilson holds in trust for the girl. At her request he has provided a place to work—at Mr. Hibbard's—and is now perfectly contented with her implicit trust in Mr. Wilson. The girl's Mr. Ritter is still in the city he will be at liberty to call, and they will visit the girl.

—There was a fine exhibition of cow boy riding on North Front street, between the Clarke and Weidler's sawmill Saturday evening. A band of cattle arrived at Ainsworth dock and was driven to Johnson's slaughter house. One steer who didn't like the nomination, bolted, and at tangents, described several circles, and plunged into Couch lake, near N street. There were vaqueros in charge, and they concluded to drive the rest of the band back to the dock, while they spent their energies on capturing the ungentlemanly steer. But he was in no humor to be captured. They lass'd him, got him up to the street, and for two mortal hours he kept those cayuses and riders galloping up and down, across to the lake and back, into the lake and out, and then gave up the fight. They finally got him to the starting point in Ainsworth dock, and there kept him for the night.

WITH THE ELEPHANT.—John Anderson, a circus hand, had a hard time in that city on Saturday. In the afternoon he got drunk and went to where the animals were being loaded on the cars. Notwithstanding repeated warning, he persisted in approaching Sampson, the large elephant. The beast stood his foolishness for a time, but finally becoming tired of it he wrapped his trunk and caught Anderson around the waist and threw him to the ground. The animal then deliberately put his foot on him, but fortunately did not plant it squarely and Anderson rolled from under. Sampson then caught the man by the ankle and was preparing to throw him when the keeper thrust his pitchfork into the beast's side, and the dog bit him on the nose, causing him to loosen his grip, and Anderson was rescued.

—An alarm from box 12, at 7:30 last evening brought together 4000 or 5000 people who were in a high state of excitement, notwithstanding the heat. There was no fire. A lamp exploded in one of the rooms over Joe Taylor's dive, corner Front and Alder. Some one yelled fire, another took it up and it was passed around the corner to No. 1's house, where the alarm was turned in. The worst frightened man in town was Mr. Robinson, agent for a fire extinguisher, who was in his room at the time, and when he heard the cry. He rushed out with a grenade in each hand, expecting to make a test of them, but did not reach the foot of the stairs before the fire was over.

MILLS ATTACHED.—The flouring mills, below Dayton, W. T., known as the Milton mills, and managed by A. J. Millis & Co., were attached by the sheriff yesterday on attachments aggregating $7000, says the Chronicle. One of the attachments is in favor of Sibson, Church & Co. of Portland for $7000. It is understood that Lewis & Co. have a mortgage on the mill for $6000. It is to be regretted that this firm has been compelled to succumb to the hard times just on the eve of an abundant harvest, for the gentlemen comprising it have worked hard to succeed. They made good flour and were liked by their customers.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT.—Some time during to-day the United States Electric Light Company will have the lamps they have placed in position about town, and if they are found to work properly they will be lighted at night, and the principal streets will find themselves in a blaze of glory they have never before known. There are three circuits of lights, each of which are to be shut off at different hours of the night, thereby furnishing everyone the amount of light they need. One circuit is to have its lamps go out at 10 o'clock; the second at midnight and the third at daylight.

FOR LIGHTHOUSE KEEPERS.—Recently the United States government decided to uniform the lighthouse keepers in its employ. The first uniform is given each man free of charge. Thereafter, when a new uniform is needed it must be purchased at the individual expense of each man. The uniform is exceedingly neat and tasty and consists of a coat and jacket made of dark blue flannel, with brass buttons. The cap resembles those worn by conductors and bears a brass plate on its front indicative of the branch of service of the wearer.

MOSES MONTEFIORE.—A meeting of committees from the various Jewish associations in this city was held yesterday morning at the rooms of the Young Men's Hebrew association, for the purpose of arranging for a grand centennial celebration in October, that date being the 100th birthday of one of the world's greatest philanthropists, Sir Moses Montefiore. An organization was affected to be known as the Montefiore Centenary Committee of Oregon, and the celebration promises to be a grand affair.

WHO STOLE $10.—For some time past Bill Davis has employed a man named Dan Lewis to act as "backer" for an "unknown" with whom Bill had issued a challenge the best man in Oregon for a wrestling match. A day or two since Bill missed $10 from his pocket and suspecting Lewis swore out a warrant for his arrest in a justice court. Lewis was arrested yesterday by Policeman Flynn. He denies the theft, and offers $100 reward for the man who can prove that Bill Davis ever had $10 that he could call his own.

CASES TO BE ANNOUNCED.—In the state circuit court this morning Judge Smith will announce his decisions in the following cases: Gerdes & Botefuhr vs. Kohn; demurrer to complaint. Portland Lumbering and Manufacturing Company vs. John Kelly et al.; motion to strike complaint from the files. North Pacific Lumbering Company et al vs. Kelly et al; suit in equity to foreclose mortgage; on the merits. Judge Smith will also call the docket and set cases for trial.

THE CORONER.—The body of Captain Fred. Elsburg is in charge of Ewry & Garnold and will be buried at 2 o'clock this afternoon from his late residence, corner Front and Lincoln streets. Captain Elsburg was an argonaut, having come to California in 1849. In 1859 he came to Oregon, since which time he has been employed as steamboat master, and river pilot. For the past three years he has been bar pilot between Portland and Astoria.

YESTERDAY'S WEATHER.—The mercury at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon marked 91 degrees—three degrees higher than Saturday. However the afternoon was not more oppressive than the day before, owing to a gentle breeze of wind. Still the clerk of the weather did not forget us, and about 6 o'clock sent a delicious shower from the south and a few drops of rain. This made the evening pleasant and few dared sleep without their customary covering. At midnight the sky was clear and the air cool.

THE YAQUINA WAGON ROAD.—Many persons who desire to visit Yaquina bay have been deterred by the reports that the road is in as bad condition as in former years. Hon. R. A. Bensell writes to the Oregonian that through the efforts of the people of Benton, and subscription by private individuals, assisted by the Oregon Pacific railroad, the road between Corvallis and Elk City has been put in good condition.

TO-NIGHT'S PLAY.—This evening Portland's theatre-goers are to have Miss Charlotte Thompson, one of the best actresses in America, in "Jane Eyre," a play adapted by Charlotte Bronte's famous work. In this line of acting Miss Thompson is without a peer. Her company is equal to the play, and includes as leading lady Miss Annie Adams, a favorite in this city. She made her last appearance here supporting the Queens.

RIFLE SHOOTING.—At the Knights of Sarsfield picnic yesterday, which was well attended, three military companies competed for the medal for best shooting. The Emmet Guard won the prize, their score being 116, to the East Portland company's 110, and the Light battery 104. James Dilanne of the Emmets had the largest score, and he is entitled individually to the medal.

A HAND FIRE GRENADE IS.—Many inquiries have been made as to what the man used to put out the fire in a test the other day. It is a bottle, shaped much as large as a base ball, with a short neck, and filled with liquor, which, when poured on flames, produces the same effect as the contents of a Babcock extinguisher. The bottles being thrown into the fire break and the liquid is scattered. That is all there is of it.

FOR SUFFERERS FROM CHOLERA.—A meeting has been called by Hon. A. Labbe, French consul, of the French residents of Portland, to be held in the hall corner Third and Alder at 8 o'clock this evening. The object is to render assistance to those of their fellow countrymen who have suffered by the cholera in France.

TELEGRAPH OFFICE.—The branch office of the Western Union, which has been located on First street, near Morrison, was moved last week to the Clarendon house—a locality more convenient to the depot, and quite as convenient to the business community.

TERRIBLE CASE OF INSANITY.

An Emaciated Old Woman, a Raving Maniac, Nearly Naked, Captured in the Woods.

At about noon yesterday, John Heft, who lives three miles beyond Summit station, found an insane woman running at large in the woods near his place. The only clothing she had on was a chemise, and her neck and shoulders were sunburned and blistered, showing that she had been exposed in this condition for some time. She was a most pitiable object, being a mere skeleton. Her age is about 60 years. When Mr. Heft attempted to capture her she made at him with a club. She was sometimes singing, sometimes cursing and then talking incoherently about her husband and children. Mr. Heft obtained assistance, captured the woman, and, placing her in a wagon, brought her in to the city jail. The police refused to receive her, and directed Heft to take her to the county jail. Jailer Dougherty refused to receive her without a commitment. Heft then drove back to the city jail, but could not prevail on the police to receive the unfortunate woman. They said the duty of caring for her devolved on the county authorities. So Heft drove back to the county jail. Dougherty still refused to receive the woman, saying that he had been ordered not to receive insane persons without a commitment. The wagon stood in front of the court house for some time and the ravings of the unfortunate woman attracted a crowd, some of whom blamed the police, some the sheriff, some the jailer and some the unhappy Heft who had gone to much trouble to perform a deed of charity. All were agreed on one point, which was that some one should take the woman in charge and remove her from the street. At length Heft lost all patience and lifted the cause of all the trouble out on the sidewalk. This caused a scattering of the crowd, and heaven only knows what would have happened had not a man taken her up and placed her in a hack. Then Dougherty came out and said he would take her in, and a ponderous trusty named Teasdale took her up and carried her shrieking and raving into the jail. Mrs. Cuuso, who is confined there, was called, and succeeded in getting the poor creature into a cell. She continued very violent, and for her own protection she was placed in irons. Late in the evening the services of a woman were secured to dress her.

Her name and her habitation are alike unknown. One man who called at the jail said she might be the wife of a man who burns charcoal several miles beyond Summit station, having heard that such a man had an insane wife.

That the public authorities have no provision for receiving and giving temporary care in cases of this kind, and that a mad woman, almost naked, must be exhibited on the street, as this unfortunate being was, is a shame. The jailer is not to be blamed, because his written orders are not to receive insane persons without a commitment. The city is not expected to care for what is legally a charge upon the county. Still common humanity ought to have prevented the carting of this woman backward and forward through the principal business streets in an open wagon, even at the risk of violating a law. Provision should be made for emergencies of this kind that may arise in future.

THE EAST SIDE.

LEG BAIL.

Five of the tramps serving sentences for vagrancy in East Portland were put to work Saturday, under charge of Street Commissioner Bartel, to take up the old planking on Holladay avenue above Fifth street. They had not been at work long when two of them made excuses to go into the brush near by. They prolonged their absence till the street commissioner became suspicious and went to look after them, when he found he had been duped, no traces of them being visible. Returning to the street he found the remainder had taken advantage of his temporary absence to disappear also, leaving him to gather up their implements and return to headquarters, which he did forthwith, to the amusement of those to whom the fact was revealed upon his arrival. As they are not very likely to remain or return to East Portland, the city has little occasion to mourn over the loss, though sudden and unexpected.

NOTES.

The Cleveland Scandal.

Rochester, N. Y., Post-Express.

When a man who is charged with such dastardly villainy is a candidate for an office in which he will stand before the world as the representative of the civilization and moralities of the nation, is it the duty of a public journal to maintain silence? If it does so, does it not only condone the offense, but also aid in accomplishing that which would put a lasting blemish upon the fair fame of the nation? The story was published last Monday evening. No attempt has been made to deny it. The names of prominent citizens of Buffalo are mentioned as having knowledge of circumstances connected with it, and the challenge is made that, if denial is attempted, ample proof of its truth will be forthcoming. If it is true, Grover Cleveland is unfit to receive the suffrages of men who have a respect for morality or a reverence for pure womanhood, and it is not the duty of public journals to maintain silence in regard to it. If it is not true, the denial should be made clear and emphatic and at once.

To be Improved, Which will Require Eminent Engineering Skill.

A Washington dispatch to the Cleveland Leader says: In the river and harbor bill passed at the session of congress just closed was an appropriation for the improvement of the mouth of the Columbia river, the largest stream on the Pacific coast. The rapid development of Oregon and the territories of Washington and Idaho has, during the last few years, increased the traffic upon this river until the domestic and foreign tonnage that is carried upon its waters now nearly equals what a short time ago was the tonnage of the entire coast. With this increase of business and consequent prosperity came a demand for the improvement of the mouth of the river, and in keeping with this request a board of officers consisting of eminent engineers was sent to Oregon two years ago for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon the practicability of the proposed improvement. The board was unanimous in favor of both the desirability and feasibility of the undertaking, and reported that with a comparatively small expenditure the water in the channel at the mouth of the river could be maintained at a depth sufficient to permit the largest vessels afloat to cross the bar with absolute safety at all seasons. Here, so far as congress was concerned, the subject was permitted to slumber, and it so continued until Senator Dolph of Oregon took his seat in the senate. By persistently calling attention to the importance and growing necessity for action on the part of congress Mr. Dolph finally secured an appropriation for this work, which, when completed, will be one of the greatest monuments to American engineering skill on this continent. In view of the fact that in an appropriation for the improvement of the mouth of the Mississippi, congress ignored the engineer corps of the army and selected the plans of the civilian, the army people take an especial interest in the Columbia river project, which will be carried on under the immediate supervision of one of the most skillful and distinguished engineers in the army. Plans are now being prepared, and operations will be commenced at an early day. This work, owing to its great importance, and the engineering skill necessary to bring about success, will no doubt attract considerable attention from the engineers, not only of this country, but of Europe.

SATURDAY'S LOCAL NEWS.

Condensed from the Sunday Oregonian.

The mercury marked 94 in the shade Saturday.

Louis Chavaneau, a laborer employed on the new gas holder, fell Saturday afternoon, sustaining very severe injuries.

Captain Fred W. Congdon, the well known river man, died in Klickitat valley last Friday, of rheumatism of the heart. His remains were brought here for interment.

Twenty-two Swedish fishermen who worked at the mouth of the Columbia during the past season bought through tickets to Norway via the Northern Pacific last week. The fare is $91 50. All of them seemed to have saved a good "stake," and said they would return here next year.

The statement going the rounds of the papers that the late Colonel I. R. Moores was a member of the constitutional convention of this state is an error. The father of Colonel Moores was a member of the convention, and his name being also I. R. Moores is probably the cause of the mistake.

By a private letter received here Saturday from Hon. Stephen J. Field, it is learned that he will leave New York on the 23d inst., via Northern Pacific route, accompanying his brother, Cyrus W. Field of New York. Judge Field will remain here about a week or ten days, sitting in the U. S. circuit court during his stay.

Grapes, melons and peaches of fine quality are now being received in profusion from Mill creek, Klickitat, and other places in the vicinity of The Dalles. The grapes are much superior to those received from California, and a fruit dealer of large experience states that the Mill creek country is the finest place for growing grapes, etc., on the coast, and reminds him of Italy.

In the $2000 match race between the three-year old stallion Oneco, owned by McKnight Bros. of Albany, and the three-year-old filly Susie S., owned by Captain Sorenson of this city, Oneco won. The filly took the first two heats, Oneco behaving badly. Oneco took the next three heats, the filly breaking worse than Oneco did in the first two heats. Time, 2:47½, 2:47½, 2:45, 2:45, 2:44.

The last of the quartette of counterfeiters captured by the police, White by name, was arrested by United States Marshal Kelly Saturday. He made a statement before United States Commissioner Paul Deady, charging Rogers with having been the principal in the crime as he did all the moulding and casting, being a moulder by trade. White claims that all he did was to buy the tin, etc., and to aid in passing the counterfeit money. He will probably be allowed to turn state's evidence. The whole gang are unsophisticated greenhorns.

Mr. Shaw, delegate from this city to the recent Grand Army reunion at Minneapolis, relates an interesting incident. An old veteran, while riding in a street car, happened to spy a fellow soldier whom he had not seen since the close of the war. In his eagerness to reach his old companion, the veteran jumped from the car and was thrown under the wheel, which passed over his leg, crushing it so that amputation became necessary. At the opening of the morning session next day the accident was reported, and in less than five minutes over $300 in cash was contributed as a relief fund for the old man.

A new joint stock mining company was organized Thursday to operate the Molalla mines. It has received the name of "Molalla Mining and Prospecting Company," and its destiny is to spend a capital stock of $100,000 in the endeavor to extract the precious metals from auriferous rock taken from the Molalla quartz beds. The officers are: President, D. F. Smith; vice president, S. M. Keenan; treasurer, W. D. Prettyman; secretary, A. W. Lambert. The head office will be located in East Portland. One ton of quartz is to be crushed as a sample in Portland, and if the test proves satisfactory a quartz mill will be put in the mines and stock offered for sale.

About 12 o'clock Saturday night a gang of six men came into Paul Richert's saloon. After drinking two rounds of beer at a table, one of the men rose suddenly, seized a beer glass and struck a companion twice over the head with it. The wounded man is L. W. Mitchell, formerly a brakeman on the O. & C. road. One blow cut a terrible gash in the right temple and over the eye, while the second, made evidently after the glass had been broken, made a cut from the corner of the mouth to the neck. There was, of course, very profuse hemorrhage, and the man became weak from the loss of blood. It is believed that the wounds will not prove fatal. The assailant ran out of the back door, scaled the fence and disappeared. The other four hurried from the place before the police arrived. Mitchell says he does not know the name of his assailant, and can imagine no motive for the murderous assault.

Nothing has been heard of Frank Frisbee, the assistant exchange teller of the First National bank. It is quite certain that he went away with no intention of returning, his residence having been cleared of furniture without his landlord having been apprised of the fact. He got away with something over $5000, which was all abstracted in one day. He appears to have made careful calculations in regard to the matter. He left on the steamer of July 26 for San Francisco feeling certain that his theft would not be discovered till the end of the month. He has probably timed his movements so as to connect at San Francisco with the steamer for Australia, as it would be useless for him to attempt to escape from justice in this country. Frisbee has been employed in the bank about ten months. He came here from Helena and obtained his situation on the recommendation of a friend, he being unknown to Messrs. Corbett & Failing. These gentlemen may consider themselves fortunate in being let off so easily. The average defaulting bank official generally dips in more deeply nowadays.

The Northern Pacific Man not Beggared by his Recent Losses.

New York Commercial Advertiser.

Said an intimate friend of Mr. Henry Villard this morning: "Mr. Villard has not passed out of the world; he is only lying on his oars. With his wife and children—three of whom are boys—he is searching for some quiet retreat in Germany where he may stay with his family and secure rest for himself and education for his children. His recent visit to London was marked by cordial greetings from his English friends, of whom he has many, and at a dinner given in his honor by the guests of the Northern Pacific railway excursion he was presented with a handsome silver flagon. In Berlin, too, his friends have come to the fore bravely and given him a greeting such as a cl-de vant millionaire seldom receives. Since the crash of last year Mr. Villard has ceased to have any connection with the Northern Pacific and other railways of the so-called Villard system, with the exception of the Oregon and California railway, of which he is still president. He has been busy enough endeavoring to evolve order out of the chaos of his own affairs. As to how much he has saved of the many millions he once had it is hard to say. The country seat at Dobbs' Ferry, which may be worth $500,000, belongs to Mrs. Villard, into whose hands it passed some years before Mr. Villard's connection with the Northern Pacific. This, of course, remains in the hands of his family. What other property he has it is hard to say. It is a mistake to ascribe, as is often done, Mr. Villard's astonishingly rapid rise to his stock operations. He was never known to manipulate the market to serve his personal ends, whatever he may have done on behalf of the great corporations which he has represented. His wealth simply grew from the property which he created. His success as the receiver of the Kansas Pacific, and later of Oregon and California railways, is typical of his general work. He made both railways solid, and they became paying concerns. Thus the confidence placed in him by the German stockholders was justified. But to go still further back, Mr. Villard made much money in the United States bonds in the early days of the war. He bought them when they were selling at 30 cents, and held them till they rose to par. His father left him considerable patrimony—some thousands of dollars—and it will thus be seen that his command over capital was of slower growth than is generally imagined. His friends say that he is satisfied. His undertaking of the Northern Pacific has been carried through, and for the present he has no further ambition than to rest after his gigantic labors. It is not likely that he will allow his mind to lie fallow long.

GREAT CLEARANCE SALE
—OF—
Clothing, Furnishing Goods,
HATS, CAPS, ETC.

THE FIFTH WEEK HAS COMMENCED.

The public has taken advantage of our great clearance sale far beyond our expectations. This proves that we have superior goods, at lower prices, than any other house in town. The clothing buyers of the state of Oregon have already recognized that fact; there is no better class of goods anywhere, nor at any closer figures, than those sold by KOHN & STEINBACH. And yet one visit will convince all that our prices range from 25 to 40 per cent. lower than can be found at any other clothing house in the city.

We invite one and all to call at our place,

Michigan State College.

I have several times examined baking powders in the market to determine their purity, raising power and influence on the health of those using them. I have uniformly found DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER, the best in all these respects.

I have just made another examination of the "Royal," "Andrews' Pearl" and "Dr. Price's Cream," and the results are the same as formerly. DR. PRICE'S CREAM is free from AMMONIA, while the "Royal" and "Andrews' Pearl" both contain Ammonia. The final reaction of "DR. PRICE'S CREAM" is acid, while the "Royal" and "Pearl" give an ALKALINE reaction, which LEADS to DYSPEPSIA. Price's is a pure, clean and elegant proportion of Cream of Tartar and Bicarbonate of Soda, and there does "in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie."

In raising power "Price's" stands at the head.

The relative amount of Carbonic Acid Gas given off by the same weight (10 grammes) of these powders, heated in the same way is as follows:

|---|---|
| Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder | 650 cubic centimeters |
| The Royal | 600 cubic centimeters |
| Andrews' Pearl | 548 cubic centimeters |

I have used PRICE'S in my family for years. "Even if the price is higher PRICE'S is always the best." —PROF. R. C. KEDZIE.

Lansing, June 3, 1884.

HOUSEKEEPERS' TEST.

Every housekeeper can test Baking Powders containing the disgusting drug AMMONIA by placing a can of "Royal" or "Pearl" top down on a hot stove until heated. Then remove the cover and smell.

PORTLAND PHONOGRAPHIC INSTITUTE.
ESTABLISHED FEBRUARY 1, 1883 (Reed Block).

THE THIRD TERM OF THIS INSTITUTE WILL OPEN ON AUGUST 11, 1884, AT THE USUAL HOUR, 7:30 P. M. Those who desire to master this valuable art will do well to secure seats, at McKercher & Thompson's Bookstore, at an early day, as the number is limited. The fact that a good phonographer can write six times faster than an expert penman, and at the same time as accurately, is conclusive proof of its great merit, the vaporings of antiquated professors and others who are ignorant of the art to the contrary notwithstanding.

Vanderbilt's Maud S. Lowers the Trotting Record to 2:09 3-4.

INTERESTING RACES AT VARIOUS PLACES.

The New York "Times'" Attack on the Union Pacific—Hendricks Interviewed at Saratoga—Record of a Day.

From the Sunday Oregonian.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2.—This has been a great day at the driving park. On account of rain interfering with the programme of the week, the sport began at 11 this morning and continued until 5, when the races were finished. The attendance was large and the weather was pleasant, except a short shower at 1 o'clock; the track was good.

At half past 4, between three heats of a pacing race of the 2:27 class, Maud S. was brought on the track, and after a little warming up, William Bair, the driver, nodded for the start and gave the mare her head. She strode off in the smoothest conceivable manner, unattended by any horse to help her along, and made the entire circuit like a perfect working machine, without a skip. She passed the first quarter in 33¼ seconds; the half mile in 1:04¾; the three-quarter post in 1:36¾, and the full mile, time given, in 2:09¾.

Three gentlemen timed her from the judges' stand. W. Davis Bonner of New York made the time 2:09¾; W. B. Fasig, secretary of the Cleveland Driving Park, 2:09 3-5, and J. Cummings, president of the Toledo Driving Park, 2:09¾. Several watches in boxes opposite the judges' stand marked 2:09¾.

THE TIME GOES ON RECORD.

President Edwards announced that the time was a record, inasmuch as a wager of $100 was made on time, D. H. Londonteach of Chicago putting up $100 with Captain George M. Stone, manager of Maud S., that she would trot better than 2:11.

The track is estimated to be a second and a half to two seconds slower to-day than the Providence track. The great crowd of spectators went wild with enthusiasm when the mare crossed the score, and again when the time was bulletined showing that all previous records had been beaten and that the handsome mare had made the fastest mile ever trotted.

She exhibited no signs of distress after her unparalleled performance, and was led to her stable amid excited cheering, followed by a crowd of jubilant admirers. She had done no work for ten days. Captain Stone is confident she could easily trot on the same track Monday in 2:08 or better, and is more than ever confident that she is the fastest trotter in the world.

President Edwards telegraphed W. H. Vanderbilt: "Allow me to congratulate you. Maud S. still reigns supreme. Her record is 2:09¾ on a slow track. Before ordering her home come and see her trot in 2:07 or better. We are all happy."

Winship, with a Running Mate, Covers a Mile in 2:06—Interesting Exhibitions.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 2.—After the Jay Eye See trot, Maxey Cobb next made a trial heat, to beat 2:13¼. She was accompanied by a runner, but broke after passing the quarter, and had to be pulled down almost to a walk. She walked around the track, and was given another start. She made the first quarter in 33½, the half in 1:06, and the mile in 2:15¼, the fastest heat she has ever trotted by 1¾ seconds.

During the time Maxey Cobb was trotting Winship and mate were on the track, warming up for their heat. After circling the track once or twice the pacer came down the stretch, and Jim Golden nodded for the word, when the pacer was sent away in good style. Winship went around the turn in faultless style, though his mate, Gabe Case, was lagging a little. Up to the quarter they went in 30¾ seconds without a hitch of any kind. Once in the straight Golden cut loose, and then the gait was forced up, although Winship was doing most of the work, and seemed to be pulling the runner. He was at the half in the unprecedented time of 1:01½, a 2:03 gait. Here Golden began to hold Winship for the finish, and the runner was allowed to do a little of the work around the upper turn. The third quarter was covered in 1:34½, and then the team swung into the stretch for the closing struggle.

Down they came, Winship pulling his mate, so that Golden had to put the whip to the runner to keep him up to his work. Winship was trotting as evenly as clock-work, and as he came under the wire in magnificent form, a shout arose, even on the judge's stand, and in a moment the applause that greeted the announcement of the time, 2:06, was deafening.

Thus Winship and mate have accomplished the great feat of reducing by 2½ seconds the famous record of 2:08½, made by Frank and mate.

OTHER EVENTS.

The next attempt was that of Phallas to beat his own record of 2:13¾, the best mile ever made by a stallion. He was accompanied by a runner, and after being sent away he trotted splendidly to the quarter, which he made in 33¼. He increased to speed on the back stretch, but when about half way around he broke, but was caught almost instantly by Bithers, and then settled down to splendid work. He reached the half in 1:07½, a little slow, but on the upper turn he lengthened out his stride, passing the three-quarters in 1:41¼. He made a splendid dash down the stretch and finished in 2:15.

He did not come up to expectations in this heat, but Bithers was still confident he could beat his record, and after being rubbed down he came out for another trial. This time he showed up in splendid form and trotted to the quarter in 33¼. He lost a little in going to the half, which he made in 1:06¼. He did some splendid trotting around the turn and down the stretch, passing under the wire in 2:13¾, equalling his old record, although he was unable to lower it.

The final event was an exhibition by the Rockefeller team, Dey Brown and Enchantress, which had never been driven a mile before in double harness. Dey Brown has a record of 2:11¾ and Enchantress of 2:26¼. They were driven by J. P. Filbert, manager of the Rockefeller stables, and completed the circuit in 2:21¼ to a road wagon.

With reference to Jay Eye See's time there were necessarily fractional differences, Case and many other experienced time keepers placing the figures at 2:10¾.

SARATOGA, Aug. 1.—First race—Savannah first, Flyaway second, Quickstep third. Savannah made a play throughout from Flyaway, and won fairly by eight lengths, six between second and third. Time, [illegible].

Second race—first heat—Boulevard first, Ida R. second, Echo third. Ida R. made the play from Boulevard until a furlong from home, where the favorite came out and won easily by two lengths, eight between second and third. Second heat—Boulevard first, Echo second, Ida R. third. Echo made a running, followed by Ida R. until a quarter of a mile from home, where Boulevard took second place to Echo and won a good race by a head. Time, 1:22.

Third race—Harrigan first, Bahama second, Earnest third. Eilon, Harrigan and Earnest made a play from the start, until the three-quarter pole was reached. Here Harrigan took the running from Eilon, Earnest and Bahama, and won easily by two lengths, a length between second and third. Time, 1:05½.

Fourth race—purse of $350, the winner to be sold at auction for $2000, mile and seventy yards—After fifteen false starts the flag fell to an indifferent send-off. Ghost was left at the post. Bonnie Bird led from the start to the finish, and won very cleverly, a length from Glengarne second, a half a length from Beecher Brook. Time 1:50½. There was no bid for the winner.

The races were not finished until 3:30. The starting was wretched, and great dissatisfaction was expressed at the long delays at the posts.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Hendricks Interviewed at Saratoga—Elkins Preparing for the Campaign.

AN INTERVIEW WITH HENDRICKS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The Times' Saratoga special gives a personal colloquy with Hendricks in which the latter said he was well pleased with the democrats' prospects. He had no doubt of New York or Indiana. Kelly and his followers are good democrats. Butler's candidacy would affect republicans as much as democrats. "I don't think, however, that he will be a candidate. I think it is absurd for the New York Tribune and other republican papers to revive an old speech published in Cincinnati papers years ago, which contained certain extreme partisan sentiments, and claim that it was mine. Soon after that was printed and credited to me I denounced it as a misrepresentation and a lie. No, sir, I never uttered those sentiments or used such a style of language as is claimed."

"What of the charges against Cleveland?" asked the reporter.

"They should be treated as they deserve, with silent contempt."

He did not believe the democratic campaign should be carried on by the expenditure of money, and deprecated a campaign of defamation. He was most forcibly impressed by his interview with Cleveland, who is dignified, courteous, incisive and exact in speech. "As far as expressed, our views harmonized, and we were content to leave the arrangement of the campaign with the very competent committee having it in charge."

RESIGNATION.

SANTA FE, N. M., August 2.—Stephen B. Elkins, member of the republican national committee, has resigned the presidency of the First National bank of this city, which he has held thirteen years, in order to give more time to the duties of the campaign.

HE ACCEPTS.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—The democratic state and city committees have received definite acceptance from Gen. P. A. Collins of the position of chairman of the state committee.

RAILROAD NOTES.

PRESIDENT HARRIS AT ST. PAUL.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 2.—President Harris of the Northern Pacific arrived to-day, and has been all day in consultation with the heads of the departments. To a reporter of the associated press to-night he said negotiations were pending for the lease of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's lines, and that definite action would probably be taken in the matter soon after his return to New York. When asked what was the scope and life of the proposed lease, he replied: "All that I can say is that it is a permanent lease or contract, and I like that term better. I will also add one word more: Everything that belongs to the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company will be under the control and management of the Northern Pacific. That is enough, and all that I care to make public at this time. When the affairs are consummated or ready to be put in operation we may not withhold them from public attention, but until they are in a mature condition it would be unwise and unsafe to speak of them."

ENGLAND.

MARK LANE REVIEW.

LONDON, August 2.—The Mark Lane Review, in its weekly review of the corn trade, says: "The change in the weather brought brilliant summer days, and the work of harvest is rapidly proceeding. In the foreign trade nothing is doing. The off coast trade is growing weaker, and there are no sales. Monday next being regular bank holiday no markets are open in London or Liverpool."

SACRED GROUND PURCHASED.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—On appeal from Jews of Jerusalem the sultan has admitted the sale of a part of the mount of Olives, which contains the graves of the prophets. The purchasers were Russian priests. The burial places of the prophets has been secured to the Jews in perpetuity.

WILL REDUCE FORCES IN IRELAND.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The government has resolved upon a larger reduction of the forces in Ireland.

GENERAL NEWS.

The "Times'" Attack on the Union Pacific.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—The Times continues its assault on the Union Pacific. It says: "Among those who were ready to serve the company by defeating the Thurman bill, and who did their utmost to that end, were Senator Matthews, now on the supreme bench; Teller, now secretary of the interior; Blaine, now candidate for president, and Butler, who is paraded before the public as the favorite anti-monopolist. The last named had been the paid attorney of the Union Pacific, while serving as a member of congress, and was true to his clients. The person who had been absolutely derelict to his clearly defined duty is the attorney general of the United States. He has shown a most obliging disposition toward the officers of the company, but has utterly neglected to perform his sworn duty, as a servant of the government, and thus far nobody has called him to account."

The Times' attack makes a light impression on the street. A reputable broker says the facts were all known and discounted long ago. At the offices of the Pacific roads the subject is treated as a part of the Times' chronic malevolence.

Apaches on the War Path.

GALVESTON, Aug. 2.—The News' Van Buren, Texas, special says: About fifty Apache Indians are camped on the ranch belonging to A. R. Cox, seven miles from this station and fifteen miles from Sierra Blanco. The Indians broke from their reservation at Fort Stanton, New Mexico, and are on the war path, stealing and killing horses. Serious trouble is apprehended. At 11 last night Captain McMurray and a company of state rangers left Murphyville for the place by special train over the Texas Pacific. It is probable that troops from Fort Davis will be ordered in pursuit.

A Cool Suicide.

DENVER, Aug. 2.—William Chittenden, a mining prospector, shot himself through the temple in a gun store this afternoon, and died instantly. He left a letter in which he says: "The world is no longer desirous. I have lived it out. I die with my boots on, and am not afraid of what is before me, believing in nothing, and knowing everything is a fraud. If I have a friend let him see 'Chit' buried as he finds him; no coffin for me; put me in my old blankets and drop me at no expense."

Cattle Disease Abating.

CHICAGO, August 2.—P. S. Shelby, general freight agent of the Northern Pacific Railway, telegraphs from Omaha, that the infection among the Nebraska cattle, was the genuine Texas fever, but he believes it has been completely stamped out. No new cases have been reported during the past two days. Extra precautions have been taken to prevent cattle from coming in contact with infected spots and trails.

Colorado's Wheat Crop.

DENVER, Aug. 2.—Accurate statistics of the wheat crop of Colorado, now being threshed, show an increase of 5 per cent. over any previous year, making the yield 2,100,000 bushels. Colorado will consume one and a-half millions and the "great American desert" will ship 600,000 bushels. In view of this fact, pooled rates have been made 35 cent rate on flour to the Missouri river.

American Political Alliance.

HARTFORD, Aug. 2.—A call has issued directing the state councils of the American Political Alliance to send two delegates to the national conference at Boston, Sept. 3d, stating that the national committee alliance met at Saratoga yesterday and decided to put a presidential ticket in the field; also nominations in congressional districts.

Washington Notes.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—It is said at the state department, that no request has been made, so far as known, for arbitration by the government of the United States in the Franco-Chinese trouble.

The coinage of the mints for July was $2,821,900, of which $2,325,000 was silver dollars.

UTAH.

Lynching Horse Thieves.

SALT LAKE, Aug. 2.—Seven more horse thieves have been lynched in western Montana, and their bodies were at last advices hanging to trees at the mouth of Mussel Shell. Downs and Felix are recognized among the number. They are supposed to belong to the Downs and Felix band, who have had their headquarters in that neighborhood. Some twenty of Granville Stuart's cowboys are out after another band, who have made for the woody mountains. They go fully prepared for all emergencies, and when they overtake the horse thieves there will be another hanging "bee," as the settlers and stock men are desperate over the loss of their horses. There have been over 100 horses recovered within the last week.

The construction of the Island railway will be commenced next month. Seven thousand tons of rails have been shipped from England for this road. It is intimated that Crocker is more than pleased with the country.

Extensive brush fires are raging near town, and a large quantity of fencing and cordwood has been destroyed.

FUNERAL OF ISAAC R. MOORES.

Saturday afternoon the funeral of the late Isaac R. Moores took place at Salem. A special car was attached to the regular morning train from Portland for the accommodation of those of Colonel Moores' friends in this city who desired to pay the last tribute to the dead. Services were held at the M. E. church, which was crowded, notwithstanding the heated condition of the atmosphere. The pall bearers were Hon. George H. Williams, Hon. R. P. Earhart, Hon. Edward Hirsch, Hon. Rufus Mallory, Hon. John W. Crawford, John W. Jordan, John G. Wright and W. W. Skinner.

A feeling prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Thompson, of the Presbyterian church. This was followed by a short address from Rev. W. S. Harrington, pastor of the M. E. church. Rev. P. S. Knight, an old personal friend of Colonel Moores, preached the funeral sermon, which was an elegant tribute to the deceased.

The cortege then formed, headed by officers of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows. These were followed by firemen in uniform; Chemeketa Lodge No. 1, I. O. O. F., and visiting brethren; Protective Lodge No. 2, A. O. U. W., and visiting brethren; the Portland delegation representing various orders. There were seventy carriages in line, and about 300 persons followed the remains to the cemetery on foot. At the grave the impressive service of the Odd Fellows was said, the grand master, Hon. J. J. Walton, officiating.

The visitors from Portland returned by special train in the evening. Those who attended were:

IN HONOR OF LIEUT. GREELY.

The Relief Squadron Received at Portsmouth, New Hampshire.

AFFECTING MEETING OF GREELY AND WIFE.

Secretary Chandler Congratulates the Survivors and Their Rescuers—The Arrangements for Future Movements—Etc.

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 1.—A great number of invited guests, including many distinguished persons and the families of naval officers, were carried by the naval steam launch to the flag-ship Tennessee, on the quarter-deck of which the chief ceremonies were had. At about 2 o'clock the Alliance rounded Fort point, and came to anchor some distance astern of the Tennessee. The Thetis followed fifteen minutes later and anchored abreast of the Alliance. As the Thetis' anchors went overboard the yards on all ships in the harbor were manned, flags were run to the masts, and three rousing cheers given. Then the band struck up "Home Again," and among the assembled guests, few there were whose eyes were not bedimmed with tears. It was an affecting scene, and many sturdy and bronzed officers were seen brushing tears away with coat sleeves.

Ten minutes after the Thetis had anchored the Bear rounded the point, and soon came to anchor in the wake of the Thetis. Again the yards were manned, and again the gallant seamen gave three rousing cheers, which were repeated when the Alert steamed slowly around, and dropped anchor abreast of the Bear.

Secretary Chandler was standing on the quarter-deck to receive the commanding officers of the relief squadron, and within half an hour after coming to anchor these officers were standing on the quarter-deck of the flag-ship. It was remarked at this time by many that not a single gun had been fired in honor of the arrival of the relief squadron and Lieutenant Greely, and the quietness of the demonstration was much commented upon.

THE OFFICERS RECEIVED.

To avoid publicity as much as possible Secretary Chandler had arranged to receive the commanders of the relief ships in the after cabin. Acting Admiral Luce escorted them to the presence of the secretary of the navy. As Commander Schley stepped into the cabin he was greeted by Secretary Chandler, who clasped his hand and passing one arm over his shoulder, said, in a voice almost smothered with emotion, "I am glad to welcome you home."

Commander Coffin of the Alert was next introduced, and in answer to a query of Secretary Chandler said: "I was never in better health in my life. It seems to have agreed with us."

Lieutenant Emory of the Bear was next ushered into the Secretary's presence, and received a cordial welcome from the representatives of the navy department.

After a brief and informal conversation between Commander Schley and Secretary Chandler the former looked anxiously around the cabin and gradually his countenance became overspread with gloom. Surgeon General Gunnell, noticing the look of disappointment which had overspread the Commander's countenance, stepped forward, saying: "Your wife is in yonder stateroom, Captain." With a bound Commander Schley reached the presence of his wife and daughter.

Half an hour was spent in conversation and general hand shaking, when the commanding officers of the relief ships returned to their vessels.

Many were the appeals made by all classes of people to Secretary Chandler to permit them to go on board the Thetis, to catch a glimpse of the Arctic hero Greely, but the requests were invariably refused.

MRS. GREELY GOES TO HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Greeley, wife of the explorer, had reached Portsmouth on an early train this afternoon, and at once went to the flagship Tennessee, reaching there about 3 o'clock. After the commanding officers had gone back to their ships, Mrs. Greely was put on board of the secretary's barge and conveyed to the Thetis, where her husband was. As the lady passed down the companion-way to the barge she walked with a firm tread, and showed no signs of emotion, other than biting her lips and tightly clutching her hands. Lieut. Greeley had not been informed that his wife was about to go aboard the Thetis, and a few minutes before her arrival, in conversation with Commander Schley, he said he did not expect to see her to-day, as she had not been able to reach there so soon. When the barge was seen to leave the Tennessee, with Mrs. Greely and her two brothers sitting in the stern sheets, Commander Schley said to Lieut. Greely: "I would like to see you in my cabin for a few moments." There he entertained Lieut. Greely in various matters until a particular signal was given by the boats to indicate that Mrs. Greeley was on board and ready to meet her husband. The lady trembled very much; her breath came in gasps, and her whole frame shook with emotion. With faltering steps she went to the cabin door, and just at the instant she entered Commander Schley left the room, leaving the long separated couple alone.

THE MEETING OF HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Lieutenant Greely was sitting with his back to the door, but when Commander Schley so abruptly left him, he turned, and at the same instant saw his wife enter. With a loud cry that was more like a gigantic sob half smothered, Lieutenant Greely bounded from his chair with eyes gleaming with joy at the sight that gladdened them. Mrs. Greely, tall, dark and stately, sprang forward to meet her husband, crying "Arthur, Arthur, home!"

After Mr. and Mrs. Greely had been alone for twenty minutes, her brothers were called in, and cordially and tearfully greeted their brother-in-law. It was noticeable on board the Thetis that everybody shed tears when Mrs. Greely entered the cabin where her husband was.

Late in the afternoon the mother of Lieutenant Greely came from Newburyport, and was taken at once on board the Tennessee. Shortly after she was put in the secretary's barge and taken on board the Thetis. When she arrived there Mr. and Mrs. Greely and the latter's brothers were seated in Commander Schley's cabin, alternately crying and laughing and embracing. An instant before the lieutenant's mother entered the cabin Commander Schley stepped to the door and said, "Lieutenant, your mother is here." Mrs. Greely then entered and threw her arms around her son's neck, saying only, "My son, my son." Lieutenant Greely spoke no words save "Mother, mother," but in his face and expression there was a world of tenderness. Clasping his mother in his arms, the lieutenant did nothing else but sob, while the mother cried like a child.

Fearing the excitement would be too much for Lieutenant Greely's shattered condition, Commander Schley entered the cabin and wisely directed the conversation into less emotional channels.

SECRETARY CHANDLER.

At or about 4 o'clock Secretary Chandler entered his barge, and was rowed to the Thetis. Secretary Chandler went at once and met Lieutenant Greely, and affectionately took the gallant explorer in his arms. In the fervor of his greeting, "God bless you, God bless you," said the secretary. "You have come back to us almost from the grave. I hope your future happiness may reward you for the terrible experience you have had." The lieutenant responded feelingly, thanking Mr. Chandler for his kind expressions.

The writer was introduced to Lieutenant Greely by Secretary Chandler, and the former at once said he desired to thank the newspapers of the country for the universally kind manner in which he had been treated by them. He could say but little at present concerning his expedition, but the public would soon be given the entire details, through official reports.

When asked as to his health, Lieutenant Greely stated that he felt comparatively well in all respects, excepting that he was at all times considerably affected by the feeling of intense weakness. He stated that he had gained rapidly in flesh since his rescue, but much of it was soft and more injurious than beneficial. He said he had a good appetite, and was slowly recovering, but intimated that it would be some time before he would recover his wonted strength. To-day, he said, was the happiest of his life. That in one day everything on earth was restored to him, for which man could wish—home, mother, wife and house—in one day given to a man who a few days ago was on the brink of the grave, is as much as mortal could desire.

The lieutenant looked very happy, indeed. He sat with his wife on one side and his mother on the other. His face is considerably bloated, but his cheeks is taking on a healthier color. He stands as erect as ever, but is not allowed to remain on his feet long at a time.

THE SEAMEN COMMENDED.

After his brief talk with Lieut. Greely, Secretary Chandler was conducted to the deck, where the crew of the Thetis was drawn up in line. A hardy looking set of men they were, rough and brave looking. The secretary stepped up to the crew and said: "My men, your commander tells me you have done your duty nobly, and that you have been a credit to the navy and the country. I desire to tell you that both the navy and the country appreciate your service, and on behalf of the navy department I give you my sincere thanks."

After cordially embracing Sergeants Long and Fredericks and the other two survivors of the Greely expedition, Secretary Chandler was conveyed to the Alert, where he paid his respects to Commander Coffin and inspected the crew. He also addressed the crew of the Alert in about the same words as the crew of the Thetis.

The secretary next went on board the Bear, where he and Lieut. Emery had an informal conversation. As Secretary Chandler stood inspecting the crew of the Bear, who were drawn up in line before him, a dozen genuine Esquimaux dogs rushed out of the cabin, leaping and frolicking around the seamen. These dogs were brought back by Lieut. Emery, who desires to see if the breed cannot be cultivated in this climate.

THE ARRANGEMENTS.

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 2.—The Greely relief squadron leaves for New York Tuesday night. The Bear has been ordered to Governor's island, where the bodies of the victims of the Greely expedition will be turned over to General Hancock this afternoon. The survivors of the expedition will be put under the care of the war department, represented by General Hazen.

The survivors rest quietly here to-day and to-morrow. On Monday a formal demonstration in honor of the return of Greely will be held. Organization of the naval division which will be landed to participate in the ceremonies is completed. Naval divisions of the parade will consist of six subdivisions, comprising naval cadets, naval apprentices, marines and a brigade from the North Atlantic fleet. Besides these divisions the parade will comprise military and civil organizations, fire companies, municipal governments of Portsmouth and Newburyport, and the state authorities. Monday evening a congratulatory meeting will be held at Music hall at which Secretary Chandler is expected to preside.

THE GREELY FAMILY.

Early this morning Mrs. Greely came over to the city from Admiral Wells' residence, and then took her two little daughters, who had remained during the night with their grandmother at the Rockingham house, over to the admiral's to see their father. Major Greely was overcome with emotion at the sight of his little ones.

At noon Surgeons Gunnell and Reed visited the Constitution to examine into the physical condition of the survivors of the Greely expedition.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

SATURDAY, Aug. 2.

The new month opened so nearly with the close of a week as to interfere somewhat with city collections. These are said to be only fair, and no more than the usual amount will be carried over. The country has lately responded more freely than had been expected, but cannot greatly improve until wheat can be sold. The marketing of wool is still slow and most of the money thus far received from the local movement has been on account of advances. The bulk of shipments passed out of growers' hands and a large proportion was sold by the consignee. Some interior merchants in accepting wool paid too much for the collection of their accounts because of allowing a fraction too much for the wool. As a rule the prices received by growers were better than had been expected. The fishing season has closed and there is a large amount of capital locked up in tins that have a capacity of one pound of salmon. No doubt some time will be required to loose this capital, as the selling markets are not remunerative and it would be hard to get back the outlay. The season of 1883-84 has been one long to be remembered in Oregon and the Northwest. Starting out with the certain prospect of poor cereal crops through all the valley and of larger ones east of the mountains, so that the general average for wheat was full, with other crops short; with a gradually falling wholesale trade and a lessened building movement; and with the latter end of a two years' "boom," the general outlook was not the best. A decided halt had to be called in more than one direction. The grain exporter was too deep in the mire, by reason of his expensive charters, to escape as easily as the merchant. Then stocks went steadily downward, reducing to cents the dollars invested. The whole year furnished a record of losses that would swamp less determined merchants, or a country with fewer natural advantages. While the road to recovery is a slow one to travel, it is a sure one, and plenteous crops, even with low prices, will soon furnish relief. Within the fall months trade will certainly show a gratifying improvement, all uncertainties will have passed away, and we shall be able to look intelligently into the new year.

Overland receipts include 50 cs lard, 100 bxs candles, 10 cses of hams, 1 bbl baking powder, 2 bls oakum, 2 bbls varnish, 103 cs lard oil.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 24 hours: 264 bbls flour, 264 ctls oats, 1 sk potatoes, 50 lbs hides, 32 cs eggs, 2 bxs butter, 1 bx fruit, 302 bbls lime. Also 182 ctls wheat, 120 bbls flour, 53,407 lbs wool, 4176 lbs hides from the eastern section.

FREIGHTS—The Largo Law has arrived with a cargo of coal. Report says she has an outward grain charter. The market is very slow with owners holding beyond the views of the shipper. The British barks Queen of Cambria from Valparaiso, and Gwynedd from Montevideo, have been added to the fleet en route.

WHEAT—Depressed foreign advices have unfavorably affected all home markets and values are weaker with shippers. Decline probable. It is hard to account for the present depression. English stocks are certainly much below those of last year, British and continental crops are not as favorable and there is not likely to be as free shipments from Russia and India. The Australian farmer is not satisfied with present values and is not a free seller. On no other causes than close money markets and a general distrust of the future or a fear of speculation can the situation be accounted. Locally there is yet nothing to report. Harvesting is daily becoming more general, the outturn fully meeting the most sanguine expectations.

OATS—A receding market is a hard one to quote safely. Probably 41½c should now be named as the extreme, as more than this cannot be relied upon, and the general tendency is downward.

POTATOES—Offerings come mostly from near at hand points, and do not appear among the daily receipts. Plenty can be had at 60@65c per bushel. The crop is a large, almost enormous one.

FRUITS—Seasonable kinds plentiful and selling at Thursday's prices. Dealers worked off large quantities last week, and will carry only fair stocks into the next.

PROVISIONS—Generally firm, with stocks in many directions run down. Receipts of eastern are light for the time being.

DRIED FRUIT—Values weakening and quotations must soon be lowered.

CHICKENS—Quote young $2 50@3 50, old $4 00@5 00. A healthy market has ruled for three days.

EGGS—Rather weak at 25c.

WOOL—The telegraph reports a reviving market at the east, due to [illegible] for the week. Any recovery must be slow, but manufacturers must soon take hold.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The Columbia reached San Francisco at 7:30 A. M. and the State of California sailed at 10:40 A. M.

The British bark Largo Law, 136 days from Hull, to Balfour, Guthrie & Co., arrived on Friday evening, and left up at 10 A. M. As she draws 21 feet she will probably lighter down river.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN
IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL PHYSICIAN ON the Pacific coast in the treatment of all Chronic and Difficult Diseases of the Sexual Organs.
He will guarantee to cure any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease, if the patient follows his advice and treatment.
He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the FOLLIES OF YOUTH, such as Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, or Loss of Perfect Vitality. Nearly two-thirds of all the chronic diseases arise either directly or indirectly from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by a majority of the Medical Profession.
Persons afflicted by any form of sexual disease or weakness often delay in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitution becomes corrupted, their organization broken down, and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence. Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances. Lost manhood perfectly restored.
Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail, if they are curable, and if not, he will tell you so.
Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.
Office—Nos. 152 and 154 Third street, corner of Alder, opposite Masonic Hall.
